Why Does Child Care Cost So Much Yet Providers Make So Little | Child Care Aware of America

It's a common question. Why do parents spend so much on child care, yet early childhood teachers earn so little? The average cost of child care is out of reach for many families and rivals college tuition, while early educators are among the lowest paid workers in the country. How is this possible? High-quality early care and education experiences, to which early educators are essential, provide lasting benefits to children, our economy and society, but receive only minimal public investment. The Center for the Study of Child Care Employment at UC Berkeley and Child Care Aware® of America teamed up to create a new video that explains why parents cannot afford to pay, educators cannot afford to stay and to propose a solution for a better way to support children, their families and early educators. How much does event insurance cost

The cost of special event insurance depends on multiple factors, such as the type of event, the number of guests, and coverage limits. Most plans cost between $100 and $500. Features such as alcohol, vendors, and inflatables often require more coverage, or a separate policy. Every insurance carrier has different policies, and some may not meet your price and coverage needs. This is why One Day Event checks plans from the nation's top-rated carriers for your specific event - guaranteeing you the best coverage at an affordable price. Make sure your event is a one-of-a-kind experience, and trust One Day Event to find a plan that fits your budget. Why Daycare Is So Expensive In America

Child care costs vary from state to state, even county to county. But there is one common thread across the country – it's really expensive. Both parents and child care providers are struggling to make ends meet with the rising cost of child care. Raising a kid in America is expensive. The cost of child care has nearly tripled since 1990, which is more than the overall rate of inflation. The price families pay varies from state to state, even county to county. But in many places, it costs more to send a toddler to day care than it does to pay for housing, transportation or even college tuition. There is good reason child care is so expensive — it's a very involved, labor-driven industry. But the tension around the cost of child care in the U.S. really boils down to who foots the bill. In countries like Denmark and Sweden, the government covers much of the child care costs. In America, the costs are generally shouldered by parents and providers. Federal child care funding in the U.S. has been in a perpetual ebb and flow in response to cultural values. During World War II, the federal government came the closest it's ever been to having universal child care. Now, with the 2020 election coming up, some candidates are making it a priority. I Want to Start a Daycare Business: The Budget Breakdown

In last week's video, I shared with you What you should be working on daily by providing you your very first to-do's that should be on your to-do list so you can get unstuck. One of those things was to create a Budget to ensure you can be profitable. When I'm working with students, we call it creating a "Fictitious Daycare Budget". And my goal is to help them to understand how to get it to profit on paper first. It's so easy to fix things "on paper" than it is in reality. So learning how to set this up is essential. Today, I want to give you a breakdown of what should be included in a Budget when starting a Daycare Business so you know how you are going to be profitable at doing this. Here's What you are going to learn in Today's Video: The three main things that must be included in your Budget. A list of Set up Expenses and the ones most people miss. The ONE QUESTION you need the answer to BEFORE you obtain your license to operate. BONUS: I will be sharing the exact dollar amount of what it costs me to open up my Daycare, so you don't want to miss this! I have never shared this one before! Okay! I know you've been dying to learn and dig into the numbers of Starting Your Daycare Business! So go ahead, grab you something to sip on, ☺ and join me right now!
