Should You Purchase A Mobile Home to Rent

Should you purchase a mobile home for a rental? Some things to think about from my experience renting mobile home.

Should You Invest in a Mobile Home as a Rental Property

Should you invest in mobile homes as buy and hold rental properties? These properties sometimes have a bad reputation, but they can be outstanding investments and also a source of affordable housing for tenants. In this episode of Ask Coach TV, Coach Carson shares his experience investing in mobile homes and why you might want to consider doing the same. -----

Stop Renting! Own The Whole MOBILE HOME PARK For LESS $$$

When a home buyer buys a manufactured home many chose to place it in a mobile home park where they pay a monthly fee for the land the home sits on. Across the United States, big corporations are scooping these home parks up and are jacking up the prices to the point they are making decisions no one should have to make. Many feel like they have no choice but to either leave their home or sacrifice medicines or even food, In this video, I will be showing you a company that can help and how some are taking back control of there parks with the help of rocs.org these co-op residents are taking pride in homeownership that they never had before. Mobile Home Park Living | Comparing Pad Rent to Land Ownership

In this video I do an out of pocket cost comparison between living in a mobile home park where you pay pad rent or owning the land your manufactured home is on. When you really look at the numbers and what you're getting for the money you can see that paying pad rent is a really great option. Everyone's situation is different and I'm not saying one is better than the other but what I will say is that living in a Mobile Home Park that has a pad rent component shouldn't be discounted by anyone. I look at the difference in monthly cost out of pocket between a pad rent lot that is $485 and buying a piece of property of a similar size in the same area. The closest piece of property I could find was $144,900 (yes, I live in an expensive area) and when I break down the costs of owning that property you can see why pad rent is so attractive. The added costs of owning a piece of property (property taxes on the land, sewer, water) make the monthly cost out of pocket quite a bit higher than pad rent because all of those things are built into the price with pad rent. If you're in the market for a new manufactured home I suggest you run the numbers in your area and see what you come up with, you might just find that pad rent is the better of the two options! If you are new to mobile home investing or simply trying to make money with mobile homes, you'll want to take notes. When you are doing a mobile home rehab, especially to generate some mobile home cash flow you'll want to be sure you understand when you should pay for lot rent, when you shouldn't pay for lot rent, and how to avoid it altogether. Lot Rent is what makes investing in mobile homes in parks very different from real estate investing. Since the land is owned by the mobile home park owner the mobile home is now considered personal property (similar to a used car). Why Buy Mobile Homes For Massive Cash Flow

Why Buy Mobile Homes For Massive Cash Flow Buying mobile homes on land for big cash flow is a very under used and overlooked strategy which I believe more investors should be looking into. Buying mobile homes is less risky because less cash is needed and is a great way for new investors to get into their first passive income, cash flow, or residual income stream investment property. There is low competition, large inventory, and huge opportunities to scale passive income with this strategy. I personally think mobile homes and mobile home parks are a great strategy and in today's video on Why Buy Mobile Homes For Massive Cash Flow I explain why I feel this way.

Buying Mobile Homes to Rent Out

A lot of gurus out there will tell you that rentals are the way to go. I'm here to tell you that they are not. In this video I break down why I consider mobile home rentals to be the "kiss of death" and the reasons why I use other strategies in my mobile home investing rather than rentals. Mobile Home Lot Rent

Most of Florida's manufactured and mobile home parks in the resort category are land lease or resident owned communities.

Often the choice of communities is based upon the mobile home lot rent. In this video we explain lot rent, how it increases over time, and some things to look for when doing park comparisons. If you are looking for the best retirement home and the phrase “affordable yet quality” comes to mind, these mobile home parks may meet your needs. Living in a manufactured home community has many advantages. Lot rent is just one piece of an overall picture regarding costs. In this video you will learn what lot rent is and how to compare it from park to park. Before you choose your Florida retirement home, you should first choose the community you will live in. Understanding lot rent will help with that choice.
