What is a Permanent Foundation Mobile Home Investment Development Project

How to convert a mobile home from personal to real property. John Marion describes a small land development new mobile home project. He shows and describes the process of placing a double wide mobile home on a permanent foundation to retire the title, converting the home from personal to real property. The foundation of the mobile home is a grid of foundation holes deep in the ground that are filled with concrete. Pillars are placed under the home using concrete blocks to give the home a level foundation to rest on throughout the the steel chassis of each mobile home trailer section. The home is then anchored down with steel brackets which permanently attached the structure to the ground. Additionally, the wheels and trailer hitch of each section is removed. This entire process changes the nature of the mobile home from personal property to real estate attached to the land. Also watch: Modular Homes vs Mobile Homes.
