Is pregnancy possible with delayed periods with negative pregnancy tests - Dr. Teena S Thomas

Urine pregnancy is usually accurate upto the point of 99.5%. So a 3 results of urine pregnancy coming negative is almost sure that she is not pregnant. And a 15 day delayed period would not be because of a pregnancy, it can be many other reasons and it has to be found out. Why would a false report come? It comes because you have done a urine pregnancy early. So you have to wait for a missed period to do a urine pregnancy test. Second thing is, if it is dark yellow coloured urine, here it says it is not a dilute urine, it is a concentrated urine, and done at odd hours. So if you have done 3 early m morning samples and all 3 are negative, unlikely to be a pregnancy test, Rule out other causes of delayed periods and treat appropriately. If you have a little doubt, best is to do a blood test of beta HCG. If that is negative, it is 100% negative

What level of blood Beta HCG confirms pregnancy - Dr. Phani Madhuri

This is the most anticipated tests in women who are undergoing fertility treatment month on month. Blood beta HCG is a test done to determine whether the woman is pregnant or not or to detect various other conditions like cancers etc. But beta HCG is a hormone produced from the corpus luteal cells which supports the fertilized egg in the first few weeks of pregnancy. So beta HCG is detected as early as 10 days that is after the implantation has happened and it becomes very obvious after 14 to 16 days after the implantation process that is roughly about 1 month from your last menstrual period. Usually a value of above 5 could be a determinant factor based on the length of the duration of the cycle or the day of the cycle of the period. But mostly a value of 25 or 50 milli international units is considered as a positive sign in pregnancy. Now single value of beta HCG does not give you any information whether the pregnancy is there or it is going or it is failing. Beta HCG is one of the methods to assess the quality of the pregnancy or the ongoing pregnancy. If the quality of the pregnancy is good and the beta HCG levels double every 48 hours, or there is about 80% increase in beta HCG levels every 48 hours. When this is not happening, then it is nor a very healthy pregnancy, it could be an early miscarriage; it can be an ablighted womb, rarely an ectopic pregnancy. If the beta HCG value is more than double in 48 hours, then it could be wrong dates or multiple pregnancies or it can be molar pregnancy. Now a value of 8 milli international units per ml, if I is pregnancy positive or not. It is a very tricky question. A value of 8 seen on day 30, 35 or day 40 of the cycle, it may not be a very good sign but if the same value is seen probably on day 8 or 9 or day 10 after the implantation, it will be assign of positive pregnancy and you can chart it upwards and see if the value is doubling or not to assess if the pregnancy is going on well or not.
