A Day in the Life of a Social Worker (In-Home Supportive Services)

Have you ever wondered what it's like to be a social worker? Watch this video to get a rare, behind-the-scenes glimpse into the workday of a social worker for the In-Home Supportive Services program. In order to help aged, blind, or disabled individuals stay in their homes as long as possible, the State's In-Home Supportive Services program helps pay for care provided to individuals who are limited in their ability to care for themselves or cannot live at home safely without in-home care. County social workers provide annual evaluations to determine if individuals are eligible for the program. Some services that can be authorized through IHSS include: housecleaning, meal preparation, laundry, grocery shopping, personal care services (such as bowel and bladder care, bathing, grooming and paramedical services), accompaniment to medical appointments, and protective supervision for the mentally impaired. #### How To Get Paid For Taking Care Of A Disabled Family Member workwithmikescherer.com How To Get Paid For Taking Care Of A Disabled Family Member. Frankly, it's difficult to get paid for caring for a family member, but not impossible. The way I found out how to get paid for taking care of a disabled family member was to become an employee of a caregiving or healthcare agency. I specified that I was only interested in caring for my family member and nobody else, and since they got a cut of the funding available, it worked. Unfortunately, not everyone is this lucky, so you must think outside the square to learn how to get paid for taking care of a disabled family member. You will understand how hard it is to hold down a job, but consider working a home business in your free time. You don't need a lot of time, even an hour a day will get you some results. This is the best way I know how to get paid for taking care of a disabled family member. You're home anyway, so you might as well integrate a home business into your daily routine.
